May 25, 2018 (Los Angeles, CA) – RUFÜS DU SOL – one of the world’s preeminent live electronic bands – made their Reprise Records debut today with the single “No Place.” Built on a haunting and ethereal foundation, the track crescendos to capture the exhilaration of encountering a siren, a soulmate - a wondrous exposé of the emotive style they have become known for. “No Place” marks the first new music from the trio in more than two years.

The single comes just weeks after RUFÜS DU SOL unveiled plans to play Los Angeles’ Shrine Expo Hall on November 2 and 3, of which both sold out minutes after being announced. In between performances at Bonnaroo and Electric Forest, the Australian three-piece will play a series of summer headline dates. See below for itinerary.

Comprised of members Tyrone Lindqvist, Jon George and James Hunt, RUFÜS DU SOL occupy the intersection of entrancing indie music and intelligent electronica. It is through this seamless transcendence of styles that their own sonic realm has unfolded; a landscape painted with the club culture of yesteryear and a poignant yet infectious ability to be ever in the moment.

The band's debut album, ATLAS, reached No. 1 on the Australian charts and reaped Platinum status – successes that were repeated with its follow-up record, Bloom. Released in 2016, Bloom offered such iconic singles as “You Were Right” and “Innerbloom,” and launched RÜFÜS DU SOL on a two-year international tour, playing over 100 sold-out shows across 13 countries.

“The Australian trio knows how to set a mood, and sell it well,” noted Billboard while MTV tipped RÜFÜS DU SOL as “poised for worldwide breakout.”

RÜFÜS DU SOL have spent the past year in Venice, CA, writing and recording their third album, which is largely influenced by the stark desert landscapes of California and their experiences on the road.

“It feels like a new RÜFÜS,” the trio says. “We are inspired by our new home out here, by the people we’ve met and the music we’ve heard along the way. We’ve got a refreshed sense of ambition and cannot wait to share our creation with the world.”
